Online Teaching Strategies to have an Effective and Interactive Language Class

Sully Carrera, M.A. & Jessica Dimas, B.A.
Centro de idiomas Extranjeros (CIEX). México

The pandemic has brought many changes to society, but it has been more challenging for teachers and students because education needed to adapt its classes to a new modality, "Online Classes". So, teachers had to face the new world that is "technology" to accomplish their objectives in education. That is why the purpose of this workshop is to know some online teaching strategies to have an interactive and practical language class in order for students to get meaningful learning.

KEYWORDS:

Strategies, interaction, activities, motivation, meaningful learning.

SUMMARY

Nowadays, English teaching online has become common in education, as in public and private schools, so teachers had to upload the use of digital tools to teach classes in this new modality. Moreover, they had to look for different activities and strategies with the objective of students getting meaningful learning. Richards and Schmidt (cited in Caicedo, 2015), define teaching activities as "any classroom procedure that requires students to use and practice their available language resources" (p. 9). It means that students need to use all their knowledge that they have acquired during the class, it can help them to practice more and to have a better development of the language, having a fluent use of the language. Teaching activities can include role-plays, group, and individual work, they are focused on accomplishing the use of the target language.

On the other hand, teachers need to apply correct teaching strategies by considering different factors such as age, learning styles, students' interests, and needs. Another essential factor is to know that teaching strategies need to develop the four macro skills (speaking, listening, reading, and writing), teachers need to be able to catch the students' attention and create a good environment, then, strategies need to promote interaction in an online class to use the target language to achieve the class objective and have a meaningful learning in students, if teachers apply the correct teaching strategies, they might be interesting for learners, instead, students need to be motivated in learning the target language. Finally, it is important to carry out attractive, interactive, and effective materials to the class as well as activities to continue learning in an easier way.
